*I*N memory of those first brave men of our Mecklenburg County, who by their courage and love of freedom were inspired to throw aside their bonds and lay a foundation for the Mecklenburg of today,

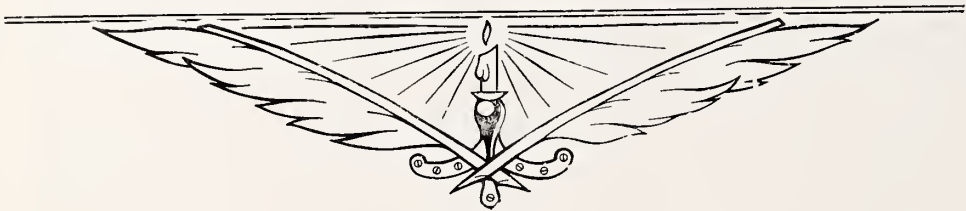

*With deepest respect we dedicate
This the Twenty-second Volume of
SNIPS AND CUTS
To the Signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.*

Foreword

WE, THE SENIORS, in but a few short days, having been graduated, shall embark upon our life voyage—over the sea to skim—some to ride the high waves, some to ride the low waves—each to meet his fate and do his part. Now as we walk beneath the portals of our school for the last time uncertain of our destinies—forth into the world we go.

But, the celestial glory of youth is not a lasting one—and only too soon age begins to dim our enthusiasm for this world. 'Tis then we shall turn again the pages of this book, and dwell once more among the memories of our past.

With the one objective, to portray the true ideals and spirits of our Central for an ever-enduring remembrance, the staff of SNIPS AND CUTS presents this book to you.

MECKLENBURG HISTORY

History of Mecklenburg County

By JULIA M. ALEXANDER

MECKLENBURG COUNTY is located in the southwestern portion of the State of North Carolina, in that locality known as the Piedmont Region. The county was formed in the year 1762 from the county of Anson, and comprised a large territory which later, at various times, was sub-divided into the counties of Lincoln, Cabarrus, Gaston, and a part of Union County.

The County of Mecklenburg was named for the former home of Queen Charlotte (wife of King George III of England), Mecklenburg-Strelitz in Germany; and the county seat, incorporated in 1768, was called Charlotte in honor of the Queen of England. The first courthouse of Charlotte was constructed of logs, and stood in the center of Independence Square, at the intersection of Trade and Tryon streets.

The settlement of Mecklenburg County by European colonists commenced about the middle of the eighteenth century. These pioneer settlers were chiefly the "Scotch-Irish," so-called because they were natives of Scotland who had lived for awhile in the north of Ireland before coming to America. Oppressive taxation, restraint of liberty, and interference with their religious affairs, caused many thousands of these sturdy Scotch people to join the tide of immigration which set in at this time, bringing to American shores a stalwart race of people destined to occupy a large place in the formative life of the new country. Locating first in the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland, the best lands were rapidly taken up, and large numbers of the Scotch-Irish moved southward, following the mountain ranges and picturesque foothills through Virginia and the Carolinas, established their homes in this attractive territory very similar to Scotland and Ireland, where they had formerly lived.

The fertile soil, abundant streams, well-wooded hills, rich meadow lands, and fine climate attracted the Scotch-Irish colonists to the Piedmont section of North Carolina; and about the year 1740 the locality later to be known as Mecklenburg County was settled by the Scotch-Irish who established their homes and cultivated the land.

Other colonists who came into this section of the country in fewer numbers, however, than the Scotch-Irish, were some German settlers who came, also, from the northward; and occasionally, colonists who came by way of Charleston and other southern ports.

The Indians who inhabited the Piedmont section of North Carolina were chiefly the Cherokee and the Catawba tribes. The Catawba river is named for the Catawba Indians, and along its banks in recent years have been found Indian pottery and other Indian relics. Relations between the Indians and the colonists were comparatively friendly, especially with the Catawba Indians, but from time to time there was trouble on account of Indian depredations. In the section of country to the north of Mecklenburg County, offenses against the settlers were committed so frequently by the Indians that a campaign extending over seven years was necessary before the Indian depredations ceased. In this campaign the Mecklenburg militia took part and rendered valuable service.

Life in Mecklenburg County during colonial days was very similar to that in the other colonies during this period in American history. The mode of living was simple; and with industry and energy the colonists cleared the land and planted gardens and crops, built their homes, and entered into the various pursuits common to an agricultural community. The land was well-watered and productive; there was excellent pasturage for stock; and with an abundance of fish and game, fruits, grains and vegetables, the necessities of life were amply provided. Cloth was woven, shoes hand-made, tallow candles molded, and many other necessities provided by the colonists and their families by their own handicraft and ingenuity and industry, for their own use and also for their neighbors in exchange for other necessities of life. From Philadelphia and Charleston, which were ports and trading centers, over wagon-roads which usually followed Indian trails, various commodities such as tea, coffee, sugar, etc., shipped from overseas were occasionally brought to the colonists; also furniture and many articles of finer workmanship than in most instances could be made by the colonists, found their way from European countries by ship and wagon to these simple homes in Piedmont Carolina. Travel was by wagon or horseback, with an occasional carriage, and sometimes a stage coach line. Owing to the condition of the roads in this early time (as roads frequently became impassable in winter), long trips were often taken on horseback by women as well as by men.

The first homes in Mecklenburg County were constructed of logs or of stone. Two stone houses built during colonial days in Mecklenburg County are still standing a short distance to the northeast, and east of the city of Charlotte. A windowless log house pierced with bullet holes of Revolutionary days, still stands near McIntyre's branch west of Charlotte.

Simultaneously with the establishment of their homes the colonists established their churches and schools. Seven colonial churches in Mecklenburg County and vicinity were known as Sugaw Creek, Rocky River, Poplar Tent, Hopewell, Steel Creek, Providence, and Center Presbyterian churches. Reverend Alexander Craighead, who is buried in the oldest Sugaw Creek cemetery, was the most noted minister of colonial days. To his forceful leadership for securing civic and religious liberty is ascribed the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration, though he had passed away several years prior to that time. Sugaw Creek Church was the first church organized in the Piedmont section of North Carolina. Schools were at first conducted in homes of the patrons. Ministers were frequently among the faculty as they were well-educated and prepared to instruct their pupils in the scholastic requirements of the day. A school for boys at Sugaw Creek, under Rev. Joseph Alexander was one of the early schools of Mecklenburg County. The most notable school of the period, a college for young men, was in Charlotte, located on the southeast corner of South Tryon and East Third streets, and called Queen's Museum. On January 15, 1771, the colonial legislature granted a charter to the college, but the Board of Government for the province made an unfavorable report upon the act granting the charter, and it was not granted by the King. Not until April, 1777, was Queen's Museum incorporated by authority of the first legislature of the State of North Carolina, and the name of the college changed to Liberty Hall Academy. During the Revolutionary War the college was utilized as a hospital; shortly after that time it was discontinued.

The heavy burden of taxation and other grievances which had caused the early settlers of Mecklenburg County to leave their old home across the seas and seek freedom in a new land, followed the colonists as they sought to establish their homes in a country where they hoped that they might be freed from oppression. The approaching storm of the American Revolution was fore-shadowed throughout the colonies for many years before actual warfare began; and it was evident that the yoke of British rule must be thrown off before the peaceful life which the colonists desired, would be attained. In North Carolina, as in the other colonies, there was for a number of years, strong opposition, and at times, open revolt against the increasing burden of unjust taxation and corrupt government.

In the months of March and April, 1775, meetings were held in Mecklenburg County for conference by the people, opposing the right of Parliament to demand heavy taxes of the colonies, and to regulate their internal policy. Colonel Thomas Polk, colonel commandant of Mecklenburg County militia, issued a call for a general meeting at the court house in Charlotte on May 19, 1775. On the day when this meeting was held, the news of the Battle of Lexington in Massachusetts on April 19 was received. The citizens of Mecklenburg County assembled at Charlotte receiving this information, as they were meeting to deliberate on the affairs relating to oppressive British rule in the colonies, and especially their own unhappy condition, decided to wait no longer but to throw off immediately British rule. Early in the morning of May 20, 1775, at the court house in Charlotte, the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, written by Ephraim Brevard, was signed by the delegates, and read from the court house steps by Colonel Thomas Polk, before a great concourse of persons. This was the first declaration of American independence. Abraham Alexander was chairman of the convention, and John McKnitt Alexander, secretary. Twenty-seven representative citizens of the county signed the document. General Joseph Graham and Reverend Humphrey Hunter were eye-witnesses of the signing of the declaration, and both have left accounts of the historic occasion. Captain James Jack was despatched to Philadelphia by horseback carrying the Mecklenburg Declaration to the Continental Congress meeting in Philadelphia, and urging the Congress to take similar action. The Continental Congress, however, deemed the action of the North Carolina patriots to be premature, and it was more than a year afterward that the example of Mecklenburg citizens was followed.

Mecklenburg County's action in declaring independence was of far-reaching influence; and the determination of the province of North Carolina to be a self-governing people was apparent. Three of the signers of the Declaration of Independence, John Phifer, Robert Irwin, and John McKnitt Alexander, represented the county at the Halifax Convention, April 12, 1776, and they were instructed by the county committee to declare for independence. The convention took this action and North Carolina was the first of the thirteen colonies to so instruct her representatives at Philadelphia. Alarmed by the trend of events in North Carolina, Governor Josiah Martin fled to a warship on the coast, where after remaining for a time, he finally left the state. Lord Cornwallis, with his troops, invaded North Carolina from the south in the late summer of 1780, making Mecklenburg County and Charlotte his objective. His stay in Charlotte was brief, and he was so beset and harassed by the valiant men of Mecklenburg County that he and his cavalry officer, Colonel Tarleton, declared the place to be a "veritable hornets' nest," from which expression the people of Mecklenburg have derived their emblem of courage, the hornet's nest. The Battle of Charlotte, in which Major General

Joseph Graham was severely wounded near Sugaw Creek, and Lieutenant George Locke killed, was fought on September 26, 1780. The skirmish of McIntyre's branch, in which General George Graham and a handful of North Carolina men routed several hundred British, was a decisive victory. In December, 1780, General Nathaniel Greene was sent to North Carolina, to take charge of the Continental Army, with headquarters at Charlotte. Mecklenburg soldiers were with General George Washington during the severe winter at Valley Forge, and were in the battles at Brandywine, Stony Point, and Germantown. Their courage and valor never failed wherever they were called in defense of the other colonies, or in their own section of country. The Battle of Kings Mountain, not far from Charlotte, on October 7, 1780, when the British met defeat, is acknowledged as the turning-point of the American Revolution.

At the close of the American Revolution, Mecklenburg was called on to take an important part in the formative life of the new state.

In 1805, Mecklenburg County furnished North Carolina with one of its native sons as governor, Nathaniel Alexander, whose grave is in "the Old Cemetery" in Charlotte. Colonel Thomas Polk and General George Graham are also buried in this historic spot.

With the invention of the cotton gin in 1793, cotton became one of the chief crops of Mecklenburg County as well as of the South. The first cotton mill in North Carolina was built in Lincoln County (formerly a part of Mecklenburg County) in 1813. Owing to the excellent climate and productive soil, a diversity of crops was produced, and a splendid agricultural section developed after the stormy years of the American Revolution had passed by. Gold mining was carried on in Mecklenburg County very profitably for many years; the United States government established a mint in Charlotte in 1837, for the coinage of money. Later the mint was used for assaying gold, and this office was, within recent years, discontinued.

Two presidents of the United States, Andrew Jackson and James K. Polk, were born in Mecklenburg County. A third president, Woodrow Wilson, spent a year as a student at Davidson College.

The town of Charlotte remained for many years a comparatively small place, the population of the county consisting chiefly of planters. An increasing trade was carried on with Cheraw and Camden, S. C., Petersburg, Va., Fayetteville, N. C., and other points, supplies being hauled by wagon.

The war of the American Revolution did not entirely free Mecklenburg County from participation in war. In 1812, the county was again called on to furnish her quota of men to assist in the war against the British, and furnished five companies, with a total of five hundred men.

After the defeat of the British at New Orleans a call came to Mecklenburg County for assistance in subduing the Creek Indians in Alabama, and General Joseph Graham was sent with troops; but the disturbance had been quelled by the forces of General Andrew Jackson before the men from Mecklenburg arrived.

During the Mexican War, North Carolina was called on to furnish only one regiment of infantry. Mecklenburg County was not included in this regiment, but a volunteer company of "light horse dragoons" joined the American forces and rendered valuable service. The company was under command of Captain Green W. Caldwell, and served for more than a year, being mustered out in 1848.

The year 1852 marked an epoch in the history of Mecklenburg County when on October 21st, the first railway train (coming from Columbia, S. C.) entered Charlotte amid the cheers of an enthusiastic throng.

Davidson College, in the northern part of Mecklenburg County, was established in 1837, its first president being Reverend Robert Hall Morrison. The college was named in honor of General William Lee Davidson, a distinguished officer in the Revolution from Mecklenburg County, whose son donated part of the land used for the building site. The Charlotte Female Institute, later known as The Presbyterian College, and now Queens-Chicora College, was established in Charlotte by Rev. and Mrs. Robert Burwell in the year 1857.

The Charlotte Military Academy, occupying what is now known as the General D. H. Hill School, was established in 1859, under Major D. H. Hill, commandant. This school was constructed as a replica of West Point, and many young men were trained here who afterward became soldiers in the War Between the States. General Hill was a graduate of West Point, and became a noted officer in the Southern army. At the close of the war he returned to Charlotte and edited a magazine, called "The Land We Love," and a newspaper, The Southern Home. He was also a professor at Davidson College, and is buried there.

On May 20, 1861, North Carolina cast in her lot with the other Southern states, and in convention assembled in solemn deliberation in the capitol at Raleigh, voted to secede. Two companies from Mecklenburg County, "The Hornets' Nest Riflemen," and "The Charlotte Grays," were among the first companies in the state to be mustered into service. "The Bethel Regiment" was the name given to the first North Carolina troops, in which the Mecklenburg County men served. Throughout the four years of the war, Mecklenburg County furnished troops participating in the Battle of Bethel, the Virginia campaign, at Gettysburg, and at other distant points, besides engaging in many battles in North Carolina, especially in the eastern part of the state, and in coast defense.

When it became necessary to move the Confederate Navy Yard from Norfolk, Va., to some inland point where the work of the navy yard could be continued in the making of cannon balls and other ammunition, and for repairing guns Charlotte was chosen as the new location. A marker on East Avenue, near the subway, shows the location of the navy yard. The mint building served as headquarters for the naval officers.

The last full cabinet meeting of the Confederate Cabinet was held in Charlotte by President Davis and his Cabinet who were retreating southward in April, 1865. It was during this stay of several days in Charlotte, that President Davis was handed the telegram informing him of the assassination of President Lincoln.

Mecklenburg County had, for a number of years after the war, the distinguished War-governor, Zebulon B. Vance as a resident.

Mrs. Stonewall Jackson (Mary Anna Morrison) was the daughter of Rev. Robert Hall Morrison, pastor of Sugaw Creek Church, and first president of Davidson College, and was born in Mecklenburg County. The greatest part of her life was spent in Charlotte, where she died at an advanced age.

At the close of the War Between the States the people of Mecklenburg County sought to build up their county under changed conditions wrought by the devastating hand of war. The years of reconstruction were here, as elsewhere through the South, crucial years in the political and economic life of the people. Farming being the chief occupation, the men of Mecklenburg sought to bring back to cultivation the land on which they had to depend for a livelihood. By the year 1870 Charlotte had grown to be a place of several thousand people, and continued to grow in importance as a railroad center.

In the Spanish-American War, Mecklenburg County furnished four companies, three of white soldiers, and one of colored soldiers. The same number went from Mecklenburg County to the World War as into the War Between the States—3,000. Camp Greene, named in honor of General Nathaniel Greene of Revolutionary fame, was established in Mecklenburg County near Charlotte during the World War, with sixty-five thousand men stationed in camp at one time, during the existence of the camp.

During the last half century, Mecklenburg County has had continued industrial development, and has become the center of the textile district of the South, as well as including in its territory a large number of diversified industries.

The Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence

Charlotte, North Carolina

May 20th 1775

Resolved — That whosoever directly or indirectly abets or in any way, form or manner, countenances the invasion of our rights, as attempted by the Parliament of Great Britain, is an enemy to his country, to America, and the rights of man.

Resolved — That we, the citizens of Mecklenburg county do hereby dissolve the political bands which have connected us with the mother country, and absolve ourselves from all allegiance to the British crown, abjuring all political connection with a nation that has wantonly trampled on our rights and liberties and inhumanly shed the innocent blood of Americans at Lexington.

Resolved — That we do hereby declare ourselves a free and independent people, that we are and of right ought to be, a sovereign and self-governing people under the power of God and the general Congress, to the maintenance of which independence we solemnly pledge to each other our mutual cooperation, our lives, our fortunes, and our most sacred honor.

Resolved — That we do hereby ordain and adopt as rules of conduct, all and each of our former laws, and the crown of Great Britain cannot be considered hereafter as holding any rights, privileges, or immunities amongst us.

Resolved — That all officers, both civil and military in this county, be entitled to exercise the same powers and authorities as heretofore; that every member of this delegation shall henceforth be a civil officer, and exercise the powers of a justice of the peace, issue process, hear and determine controversies according to law, preserve peace, union and harmony in the county, and use every exertion to spread the love of liberty and of country until a more general and better organized system of government be established.

Resolved — That a copy of these resolutions be transmitted by express to the President of the Continental Congress assembled in Philadelphia, to be laid before that body.

Acknowledgment

We wish to express our appreciation to Col. E. L. Baxter Davidson, well known philanthropist, and a descendent of Major John Davidson, one of the Signers of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, whose financial assistance helped to make this edition of SNIPS AND CUTS of historic value.

We also wish to thank Miss Julia M. Alexander, a descendent of John McKnitt Alexander, secretary of the convention which passed the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence, for her interest and help in preparing sketches of Mecklenburg County History, and in supplying information regarding historic places in Mecklenburg County.

Act Creating Mecklenburg County, 1762*

I. WHEREAS by Reason of the large Extent of the County of Anson, it is generally inconvenient for the Inhabitants to attend Court of the aforesaid County, general Musters, and other public Duties by Law required:

II. Be it therefore enacted by the Governor, Council and Assembly, and it is hereby enacted by the Authority of the same, That from and after the first Day of February, the said County of Anson shall be, and is hereby divided into two distinct Counties, by a Line beginning at Lord Carteret's Line, six Miles North-East from Captain Charles Hart's plantation on Buffalo Creek, and to run from thence to the Mouth of Clear Creek, which empties itself into Rocky River, below Captain Adam Alexander's; and from thence due South to the Bounds of the Province of South Carolina. And that all that Part of said County which lies to the Eastward of said dividing Line, shall be a distinct County, and remain and be called by the Name of Anson County; and that all that Part of the said County lying lying to the Westward of said dividing Line, shall be thenceforth one other distinct County, and called by the name of Mecklenburg.

*Petition presented November 12, 1762. Bill introduced November 17. Passed December 2. Ratified December 11. Signed by Gov. Arthur Dobbs, President James Hasell and Speaker John Ashe.

Senior Class History

We, the Class of '31, find it hard to realize that we shall soon be history, for it seems to us only a few short years since we first trudged happily to school. Our feelings have undergone many changes since then, but it is not without a choking feeling in our throats that we bid farewell.

Our grammar school days were not unlike those of the classes that have gone before, even though we are a remarkable class. We struggled bravely through the first rudiments of learning. How often we used to wonder if we would ever become a high school student and not have to say multiplication tables and march in from recess. Yet, many times after that we wished that we could go back to those care-free days of two times two.

Then came Junior High School. "Now," we thought, "We've grown up at last." We were proud of ourselves, and boasted of the fact to our younger brothers and sisters that we could change classes, in all that crowd, without even breaking an arm. What great rivalry there was between those of us who went to Alexander Graham and those who went to Piedmont! We were sure that we could never be even civil to the opposing faction, when we were all in the same school, but those days passed quickly by, and one fall we found ourselves very much bewildered and snubbed at high school.

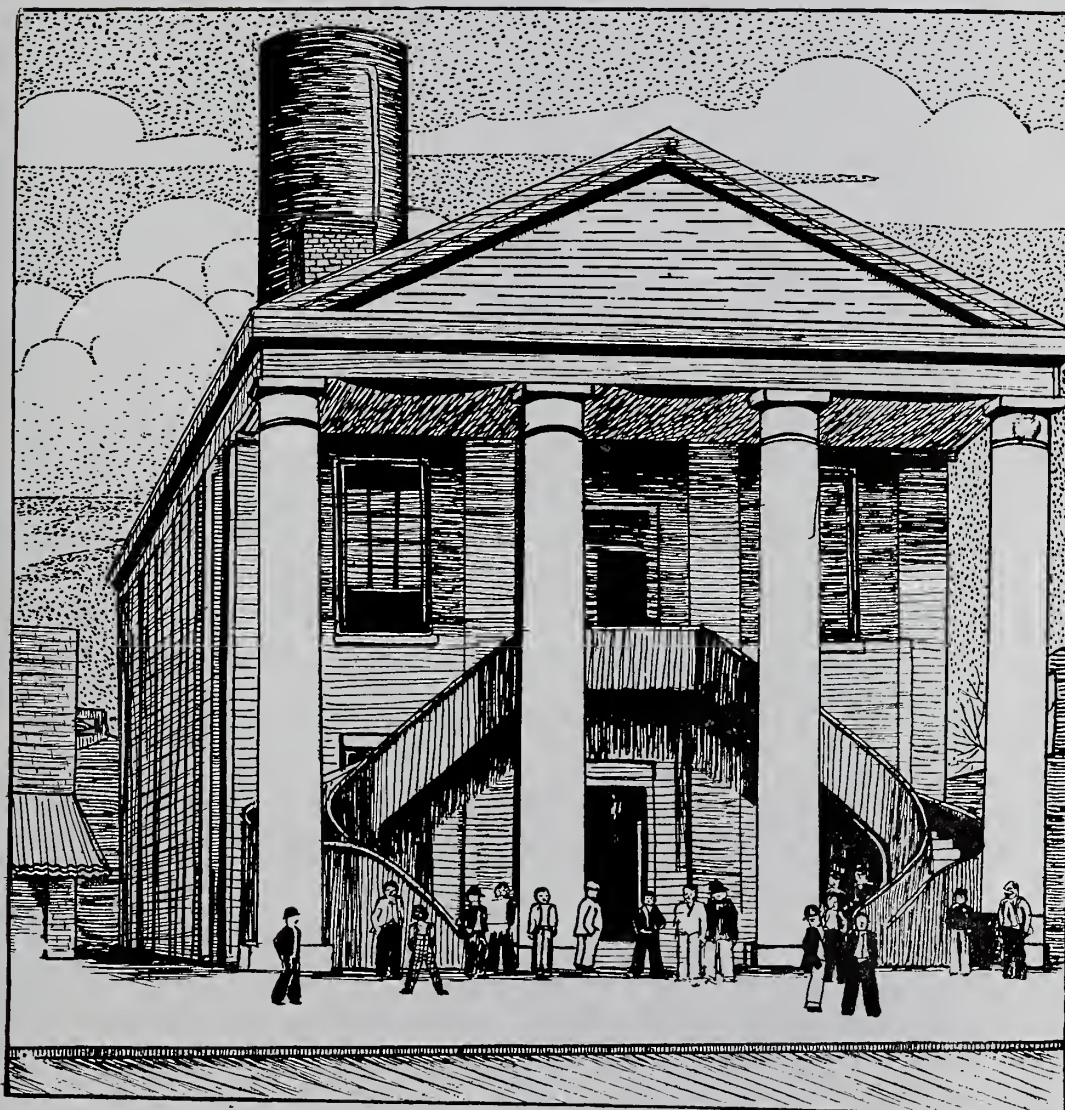

It was entirely different from the pictures of high school we had conjured in our minds up to this time. Where were the happy faces, smiling a welcome we had imagined? We felt queer and wished (although we never dared murmur it aloud) that we were anywhere but here. The first step toward our future happiness was the party the Student Council gave for us. It was a gala occasion and we soon discovered that the people from A. G. or Piedmont, as the case might be, were very much human after all. Some pessimist has said that "Back of every kind deed there is a good reason." For after the party the class was ordered to make the annual bonfire for the night before the Tech High game. Although we said numbers of things, under our breaths, of course, about the laziness of the upper classmen, we enjoyed it and felt as though we were doing something toward increasing the honor of the school. The rest of the year passed quickly and we were upper classmen before we knew it.

Now it may be hard to build bonfires and to be snubbed, but raising money to give one's dignified superiors a fitting send-off is another question. It seemed as great to us as the building of a trans-Atlantic bridge. Then we were struck with the brilliant idea of raising money by a faculty basketball game. The faculty did the work, the Junior Class received the money. Surely we are a remarkable class! The Junior-Senior banquet was a success. We were all dressed in our best and enjoyed it as much, if not more, than our guests. If it were not for raising money we should have liked always to have been "just Juniors."

The next fall came before we knew it and we were Seniors. How we thrilled over the word as we said it to ourselves! How dignified and knowing we endeavored to appear to those less fortunate! However, we soon found that "the higher the position the greater the worry," for we were constantly haunted by the fear of not graduating, but we were optimistic and ordered our rings and invitations. We had many lively discussions about the gift (which, by the way, is a radio, and we hope its music will blend well with the clattering of dishes and babbling of voices in the cafeteria), the graduation exercises, the size of the diplomas, and the minister for baccalaureate sermon, but all this was settled with no loss of life.

Although, like the relief maps, we have had our ups and downs; we look back with a sigh to the days we have left behind. We hope that the Class of '31 will not be thought of as having left these portals forever, for wherever we are or whatever we do, we still in spirit take part in the activities of Central High.

MARY E. WOODWARD,
Historian.

Marker erected near Sugaw Creek Church, by Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, in memory of General Joseph Graham, who, near this spot, was severely wounded nine times by the British in the War of the American Revolution. General Graham recovered and lived to a ripe age. When a youth he was an eyewitness of the signing of the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence.

Act Establishing Charlotte*

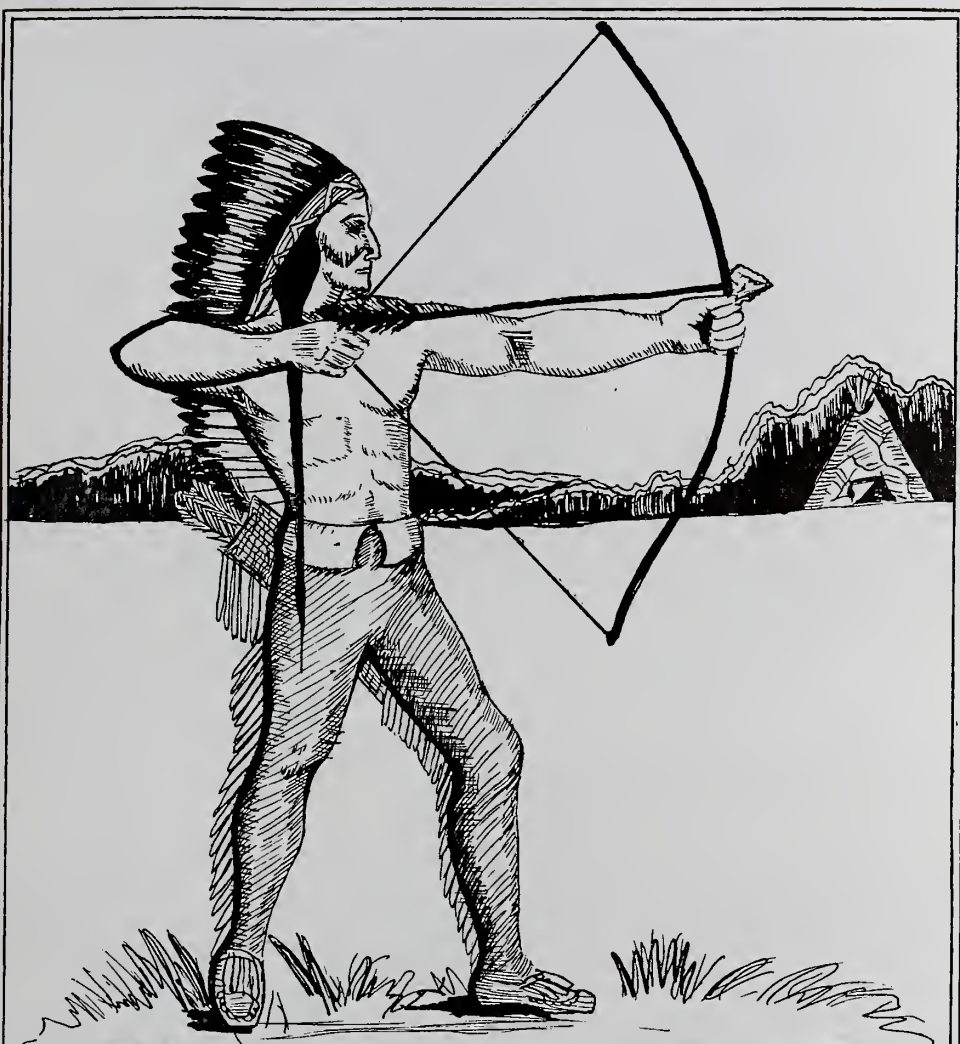

I. WHEREAS it has been represented to this Assembly that three hundred and sixty acres of land was granted to John Frohock, Abraham Alexander and Thomas Polk, as commissioners, intrust for the county aforesaid, for erecting a court house, prison, and stocks, for the use of said county; which said three hundred and sixty acres of land was afterwards by them laid off into a town and common; and that part of the said three hundred and sixty acres of land hath likewise been laid out into lots, of half an acre each, on some of which good habitable houses have been erected; and that by reason of the healthiness of the place aforesaid and convenient situation thereof for trade, the same might soon become considerable, if it was erected into a town by lawful authority; to which the said John Frohock, Abraham Alexander and Thomas Polk, commissioners aforesaid, who are now seized in fee of the said three hundred and sixty acres, and those who claim under them, having consented:

II. Be it therefore enacted, by the Governor, Council and Assembly and by the authority of the same, that the said three hundred and sixty acres of land, so laid off by the commissioners or trustees as aforesaid, be and the same is hereby constituted, erected, and established, a town and town common, and shall be called by the name of Charlotte.

*Ratified December 3, 1768.

Coach Skidmore

Charlotte High School now holds the State Championship in the four major sports in high school athletics.

Through what man has Central achieved such a great degree of success in these sports? It is true the players do the work—or shall we call it play?—they meet and defeat all comers to uphold the name Central as it has been upheld through the passing years. But, gentle reader, the man who has built these teams, taught them the tricks, drilled in their minds the theory of the game, and the one thing, sportsmanship, is none other than Walter Dennis Skidmore, Head Coach of football, basketball, and baseball.

Coach Skidmore has been at Central since 1927, when he was assistant to Jack Caldwell. Central has won championships in baseball, basketball—the first for Central in these sports—two State titles in football and it looks like another baseball title in the bag for “Ole Skid” this season.

If this isn’t a record to be proud of—no man can expect to be a coach of any degree of success.

It may not be the policy of students to go personally to Coach Skidmore and compliment him on the success of the teams, nor does a one-man opinion of him mean anything, but this book, in the name of the school, Central, wants to express appreciation for the great work Coach Skidmore has done for us.

Maybe a little life history would help those who are strangers at Central get better acquainted with the man of men at Central.

Coach Skidmore was born in Harlan, a little town in Kentucky, and received his education at Centre College, the then football team of teams. Coach Skidmore was a tackle, the lightest man in the line at that time. He received mention on many All-American teams and captained the team in 1925.

His favorite nickname during his stay at Centre was “Skid,” but one he is known by around home, Harlan, is “Bush Hog”; this for his being a dweller of the sticks—a long way in the country.

Coach Skidmore may or may not be with us next year, but wherever he is, far or near, he will always be warmly remembered by the students of Central.

Central Titles

Central has a record in athletics of which she indeed has a right to be proud. It is not often that one school has the distinction of holding all four state championships in major sports at the same time, and we, the students of Central High, are indebted to our stalwart sportsmen for the honors they have brought us. In winning their titles, Central's athletes not only have proved their ability but also have established the name of Charlotte High as a by-word for sportsmanship and character. They played the game not for the sake of winning but for the sake of the game itself, as tradition dictates to a team representing the Blue and Grey of Charlotte High.

The high plane of athletics at Central is but a tribute to the spirit of her student body, the interest of the citizens of Charlotte in high school sports, the ability of her coaches, and the prowess of her athletes.

Coaches, 1930

Sutton Alexander, assistant to Coach Skidmore in football, has been with Central for two seasons. Central won the state championship those same two seasons and let it be known that no small amount of credit goes to "Sut" for our wonderful record.

Lillian Arhelger hails from Fredericksburg, Texas, and matriculated from the University of Texas and N. C. C. W. She very capably handles girls' sports, be they basketball, hockey, tennis, or archery, a fact easily confirmed by a look at her record.

Galen Elliot, All-American miler in '27, from the University of North Carolina, was assistant to "Doc" Barrett for two years before he and Coach Byrd took over the coaching duties this year. His coaching ability is on a par with his track ability, which is all that need be said.

Francis Byrd, former V. P. I. star, co-coaches with Elliot, his specialty being the handling of the weight men, high jumpers, and hurdlers. Central is indebted to Coach Byrd for the time and interest he has given Central's trackers out of sheer love for the sport.

Captains, 1930

Joe Funderburk, captain of football team, filled the rôle of both captain and quarterback in noble fashion. His football strategy, ability, and leadership, helped to inspire Central to one of her most successful seasons on the gridiron, and were sufficient to make him a unanimous All-State choice for two years.

Frank Alexander, among the best centers ever produced at Central, captained the Blue and Grey cagers to the most successful season in the history of the school. Without his sterling qualities as a leader and prowess as a player, this splendid record would hardly have been possible. All-State and All-Western is his athletic record.

Harvey Hopson is a sportsman and an athlete. His work on the cinder path is a source of never-ending inspiration to his team mates. His specialty is the 440, but his all-round track ability permits him to perform well in almost every branch of the sport.

John Samuel Bell, besides being an All-State basketball player, captains Central's diamondneers from his short-stop position. Sameo's cool head, fiery playing, and ability at bat bid fair to make him the outstanding infielder of high school circles in the state.

Review 1930 Football Season

With the return of only seven lettermen from last year's state championship team, and with Central's usual stiff schedule, football enthusiasts were not optimistic over Central's chances in the 1930 campaign on the gridiron. They failed to take into consideration, however, the unquenchable spirit of Central's athletes, and the unbelievable ability of Coaches Skidmore and Alexander to turn out not football players but football teams.

Shelby went down before the Blue and Grey in the opening non-conference game, but Wildcat followers received a jolt when Columbia defeated Charlotte in the only game lost during the year. The record of the next eight games, marred only by a tie with Winston-Salem, speaks for itself. Central won the Western Conference handily with overwhelming victories over such strong teams as Greensboro, High Point, and Asheville, and capped her successful season by defeating Raleigh, eastern title holders, for the state championship in a hard-fought game at Chapel Hill.

In her intersectional games, Central defeated the strong Knoxville High team from Tennessee, and subdued the highly touted Atlanta Tech Smithes in one of the high spots of the season. The Engineers, reputed to be one of the best high school teams in the South, came to Charlotte full of confidence for an easy victory, but what started to be a hard-fought game with odds favoring the Atlanta team ended in a complete rout with Central in possession of the long end of the score.

Much credit for her successful season goes to Central's mighty line, which held its opponents to thirteen points for the season, and just as much to her machine-like backfield which ran roughshod over all opposition.

Review 1931 Basketball Season

Two losses out of twenty-three starts! Unbeaten by any team they had not previously defeated! This is the record of the cleverest, the quickest, the coolest, and the mightiest basketball team ever to represent Central. The coaching and ability of these boys was of high order, and resulted in the winning of the state championship—an achievement unequalled by any other quintet from Central. Incidentally, this gave Charlotte possession of all four major athletic championships of the state at the same time.

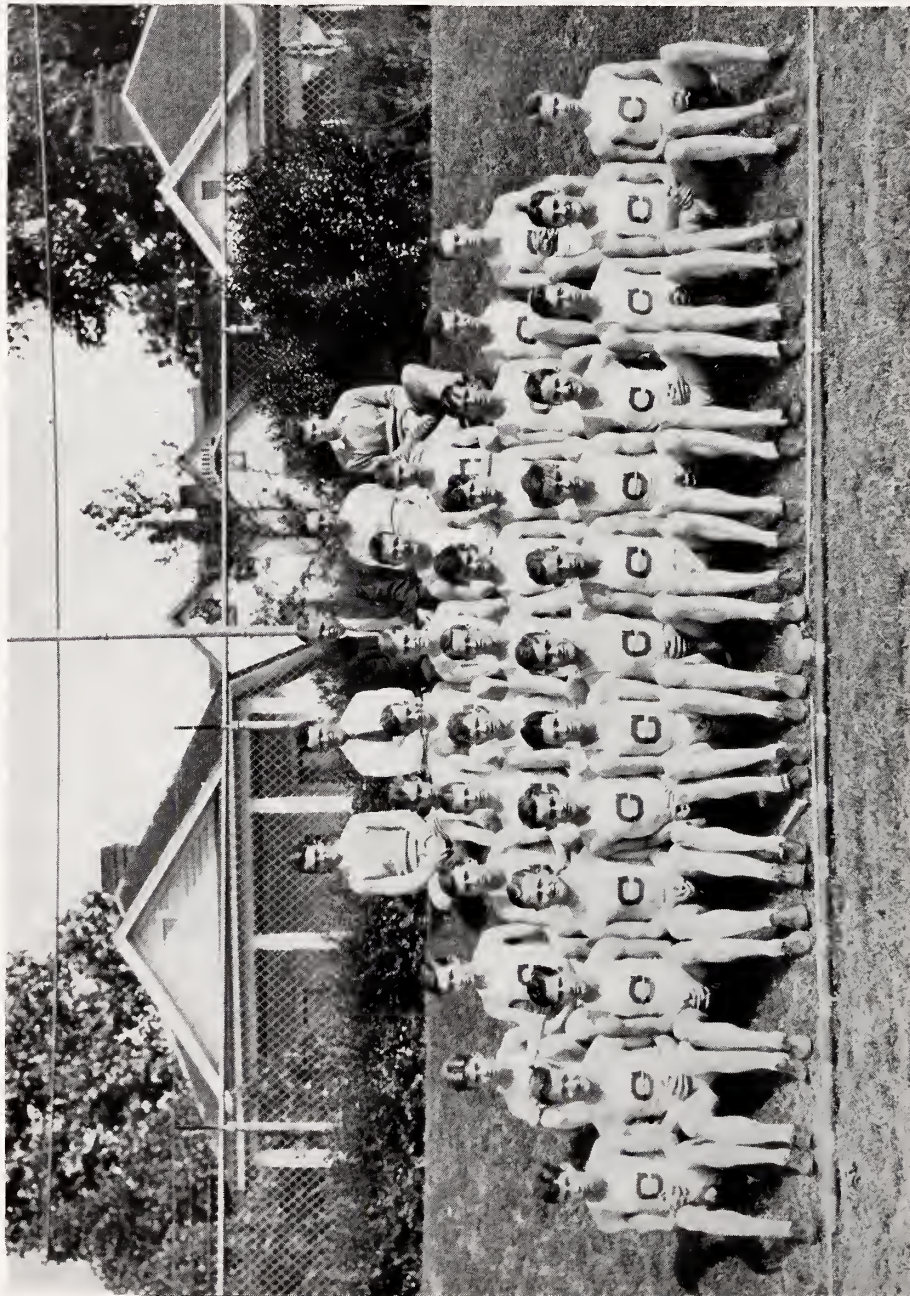

The record shows sixteen consecutive victories before a mark was placed on the wrong side of the ledger. This loss was to the Davidson Frosh, a team which Central had defeated on an earlier occasion. This remarkable string of wins includes decisions over every team in the Western Conference, Spartanburg, and Columbia.

To make a long story short, the Wildcats cleaned up every thing in the west and went to Chapel Hill, where they defeated a really excellent team from Raleigh in a thrilling battle, making the third victory over Raleigh in state championship contests in the period of a year. The team then entered the invitation tournament sponsored by Washington and Lee University, in Virginia, and went to the semi-finals before being ousted by Spartanburg.

As a fitting climax to a successful season, Central won from the state and southern championship Charlotte Y. M. C. A. team 28-10. The former college stars were completely outplayed, and hardly were allowed to come within shooting distance of the basket.

The combination of Bell and Aitken, forwards; Captain Alexander, center, and MacCachren and Hatcher, guards, will be hard to equal, and it is with great reluctance that Central sees them leave her portals.

Track Review, 1930

An early call for track candidates in 1930 resulted in the turning out of one of the largest squads for that sport Central has ever known. And it was well that the squad was large. Since Captain Oscar Mullis, weight heavier deluxe, and Jack Wood, high jumper and hurdle man, were the only monogram wearers back from the last year's team, "Doc" Barrett and Elliott craved talent.

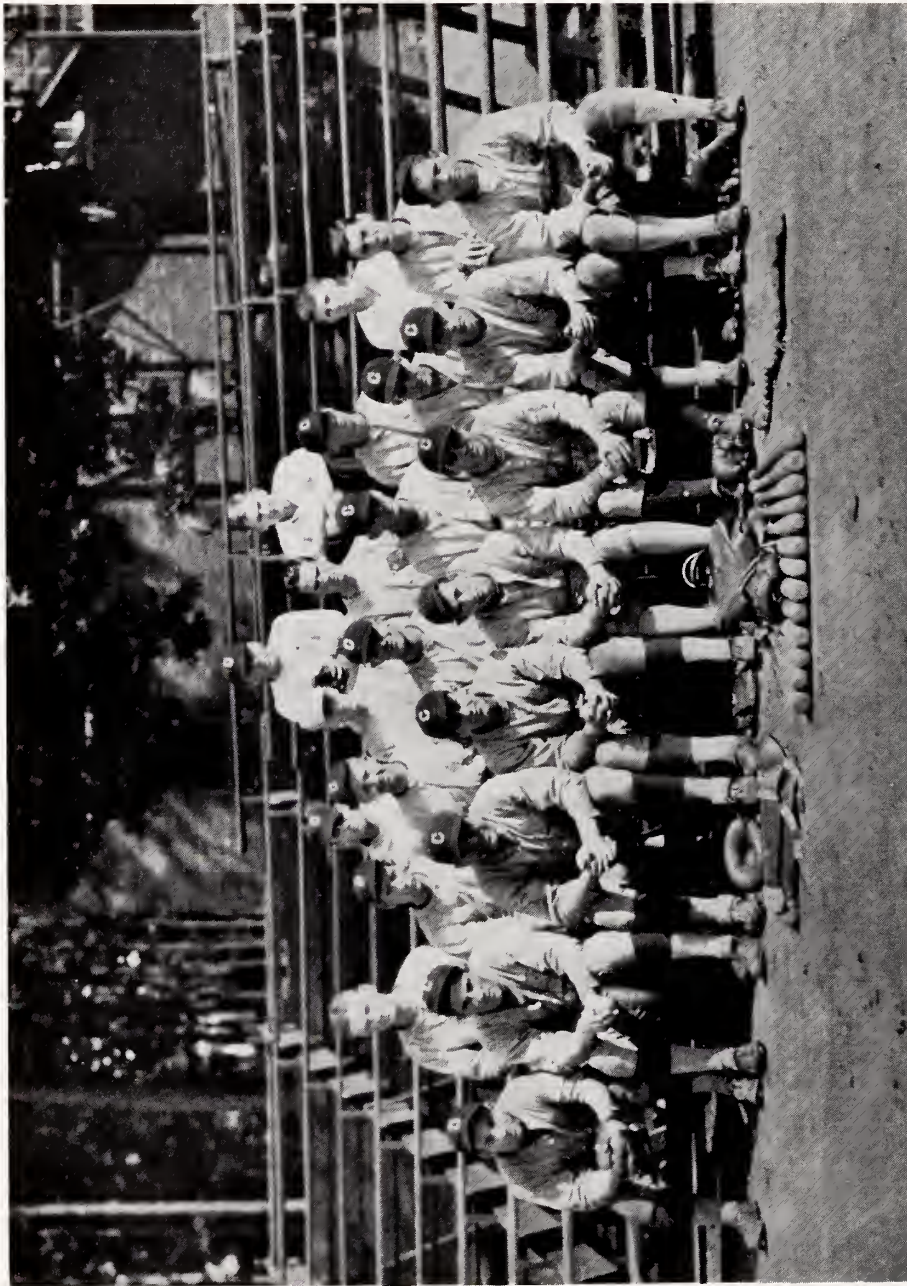

And talent they received. From what at first looked to be a bunch of rookies, was fashioned one of the best balanced teams ever to represent Central. It was good enough to win the state championship the eighth time in nine years that Central's cindermen have brought home the cup from the Hill.

In the last meet of the season, Central's track men trimmed Columbia, South Carolina champions, to establish themselves undisputed champions of the two states.

Review 1930 Baseball Season

With the prospects higher than those of any previous season, Central entered the state pennant chase with some hope of making a name for herself. Nor were her hopes in vain. Coach Skidmore fashioned a smooth-working, hard-hitting team that proved itself to be the class of Tarheelia.

Although several games were lost, Central's percentage was the highest among class A High Schools in the Western Conference. Victories were chalked up over Shelby, Gastonia, and Greensboro, not to mention a non-conference win over the fast stepping Davidson Frosh.

The plain and fancy twirling of Captain Tom Gadd and the support given him by the whole team resulted in Central's traveling up to the "Hill," where they administered Raleigh a drubbing to mark up the first baseball championship ever to be owned by the Blue and Grey.

Golf Team, 1930

The Wildcat linksmen for the third time proved their ability by winning the last leg on the Ivey Trophy and giving themselves permanent possession of the South's most coveted high school golf trophy. In dual matches, Columbia, Greensboro, State College, and Gastonia bowed before the master stroking of Central's golfers. In the last match of the season, played at Port Deposit, Md., with Tome Institute, Central uncorked some fine golf to tie the Eastern champions in a thrilling match.

Basketball Review

When Miss Lillian Arhelger came to Central, she had a job before her, one that had been too hard for all other girls' athletic coaches here: that is, to put out a successful basketball team for Charlotte High.

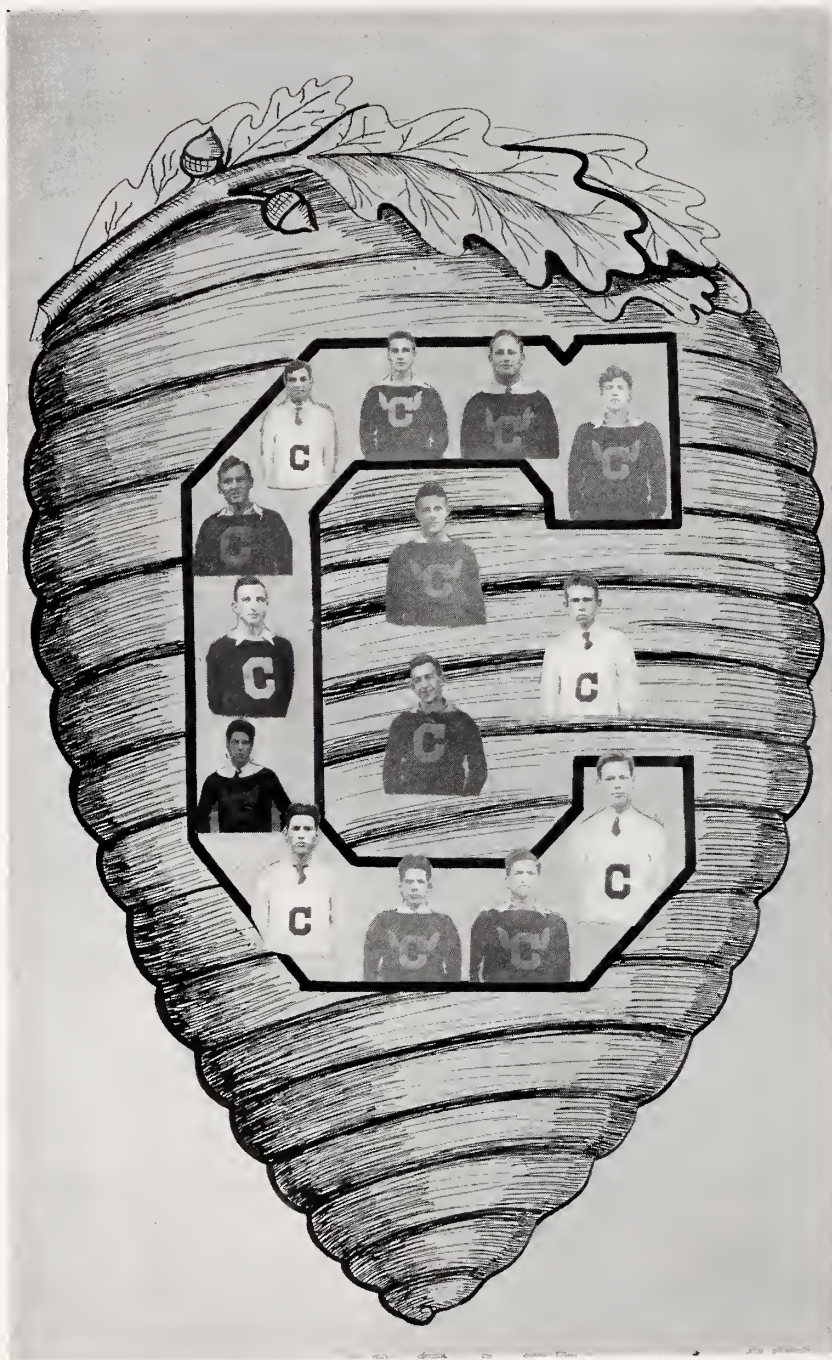

Miss Arhelger did just this, with the help of a band of the best high school girl cagers ever to display their floor ability in this section.

The team played through a long and strenuous season with but four defeats, only two by a high school team. They played seventeen games in all.

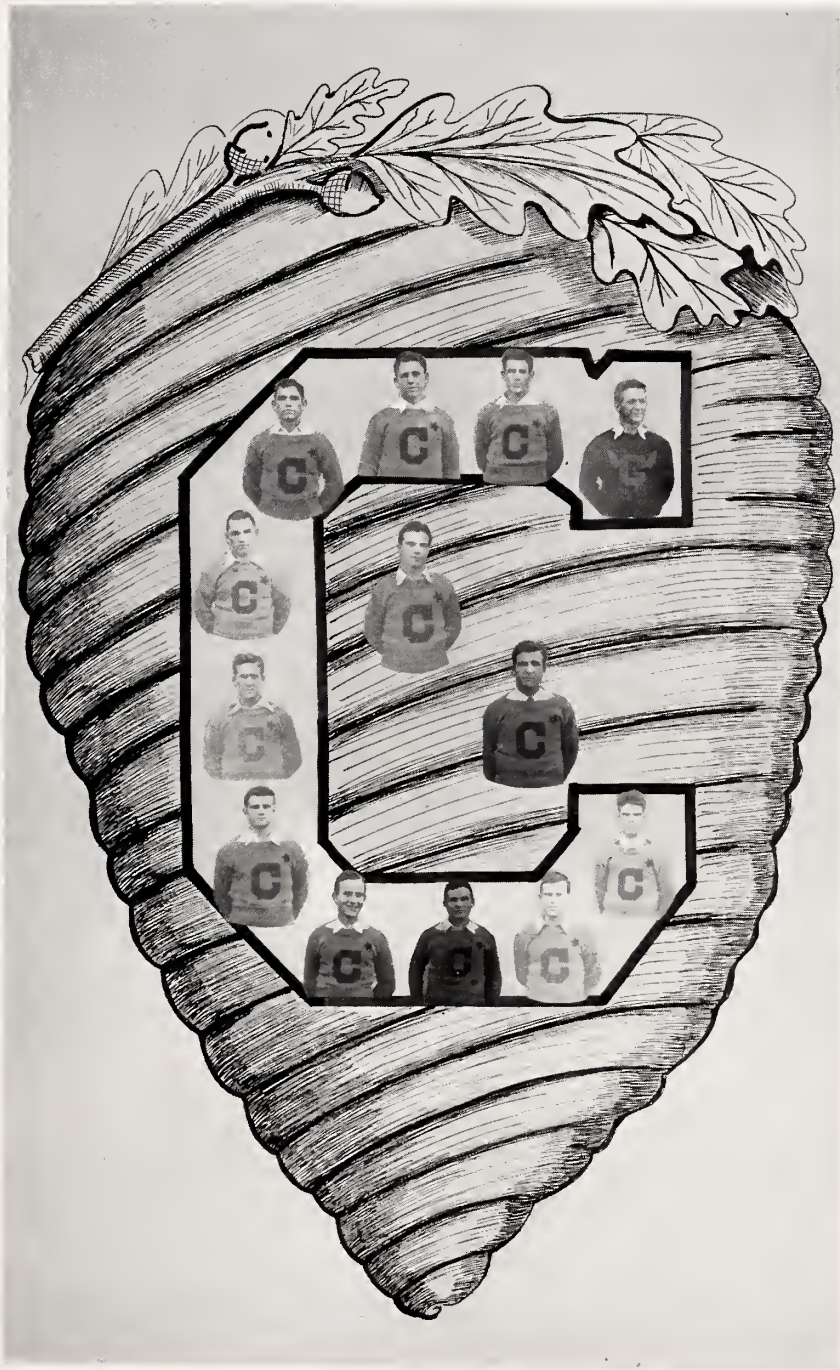

Their best game of the season was with Barium Springs at the Orphanage school. The Central girls finally won 30 to 29 over their most heated rivals.

Several brilliant players were brought out in the season's play. Sara Grier, diminutive forward, was high scorer for the season with 271 points—said to be the highest in the state for a high school player. Captain Lessie Beaver closed a career that has left sweet memories in the minds of her followers. The two real stars of the girls' sextet were first-year players: Annie Belle and Lue Belle Hendrix—Central's well known twins. These two girls held down two guard positions on the team, and what a time the opposing team's forwards had in shooting points over the tight guarding they exhibited.

Miss Arhelger can be complimented on the way she has brought girls' sports out of the well known wilderness. She has other ideas for the betterment of Central's Girls' Athletic Association.

MONOGRAM CLUB

Intimate Glimpses Into Central's Athletic Hall of Fame

Lex "Big Train" Moser is a tackle of renown in state circles. His glass arm is also a big help to Central's mound staff, and his "teaser" even sometimes fools his opponents.

Harold Sutton bears the brunt of the field events on the track team. He is always good for one first place, or maybe three, in the shot-put, discus, and javelin.

Howard Sutton wins the points in the javelin that brother Harold doesn't. These boys have a habit of keeping the medals in the family.

"Daddy" Jim McCachren has been one of the most outstanding athletes to attend Central. His ability to lead the teams on to greater heights has brought both Central and himself untold honors.

Erwin Laxton, a member of both State Championship grid teams and captain of the Southern Interscholastic golf champs, will leave Central with a name to be long remembered by the students of Central.

Dallas Morris, "Big Munn," as he is known to the boys, now a Junior, has won letters in football and baseball and bids fair to be one of the greatest athletes Central can boast.

Charlie "Farmer" Gadd, in his Freshman year as a member of the State Championship grid team, will be remembered for his brilliant punting and powerful line driving. He was a unanimous choice for All-State halfback last season.

Henry "Useless" Fort, one of the most colorful basketball players this season, will again ring up two-pointers for the Wildcat rooters that get such a thrill out of seeing "Slim" Fort "swish" one.

"Burr" Shoupe, long an athlete of high standing at Central, leaves us this year. "Burr" has won All-Western and All-State honors as an end on the high school team.

"Burr's" smaller brother—who isn't so small at that—Frank, was the leading batter of the State Championship baseball team last year, and bids fair to develop into an outstanding athlete.

"Creepy" Grose, basketball manager in '30, and track in '31, took all the backtalk from the players and ended the season in fairly good condition.

Sam Bell, John Samuel as Mrs. Bell calls him, played a forward on the basketball team, and captained the baseball team from his position at shortstop. He's a whale of a basketball player and a whiz at tossin' 'em.

Two years an All-State basketball player is the record held by Snooks Aitken in the two years he has been a member of the high team. Snookie will always be remembered as a sure shot from any place on the hardwood floor.

Red Farrell, the sorrell-topped flinger on Walter Skidmore's baseball nine, just don't care who knows it—he has a fast one they all have to look for.

The captain-elect for the 1931 football team, Big Fred Hood, has won in his second year in high school All-State honors at a guard position. He is expected to blossom out into a sensation next year.

Babe Daniel, another of Central's most outstanding athletes, will leave for other camping grounds at the beginning of next school term. Babe has won letters in football and baseball ever since he has been in high school—that is three years. He has won All-State honors at his center position during his entire high school career.

Captain Harvey Hopson, a brilliant 440 runner and anchor man on the fast stepping relay team, has along with his mates upheld the records past teams have set for the high school in track events.

J. T. Hasty, a weight man de luxe, did most of the shot putting and discus throwing for the high's during the past two track seasons.

Graham Allison, a cheer leader by make, but a corking good track man as a sidekick calls a halt to his high school career at the end of this year. Graham tops the low timber for C. H. S.'s track team.

One of the best ends in high school—that was Hubert "Hoot" Farris. "Hoot" ran off with All-State and All-Southern honors last season.

Little Mack Woodward, "Dog Face," they call him, has had tough luck being in the same class with big Babe Daniel. Mack is one of the best little men in football around here, and he doesn't fail to let the big boys hear from him.

Joe Funderburke, who captained the football team, has also earned his letter in basketball and baseball. Although diminutive in size, "Smokey" is bottled dynamite, as many of Central's opponents have become painfully aware of.

Frank Landis claims his letters in football and track. As a halfback, he was dangerous off tackle, and as a sprinter, made nifty time in the 220 and 440. "Johnny Red" has claimed the wrestling championship so long that people have ceased to argue with him.

Henry Cathey is one of the most aggressive line men Central ever knew. His playing at tackle was one of the high lights of the team.

Bill Monty was Henry's running mate in the other side of the line. His playing was always consistent and dependable, and a threat to all comers.

J. D. Lockerbie made his letter in football in this, his Freshman year. His future is promising as a capable running mate to Captain Hood at guard next year.

Frank Alexander's basketball ability is discussed at length elsewhere in this book, but it is well to mention that he managed football for two years and came out of it in one piece.

Clyde Hatcher specializes in holding star forwards to practically no points at all. His brilliant playing landed him a berth on the All-State selection in this, his Junior year.

Maurice Peabody is to be one of the mainstays of next year's basketball team. He served as a capable understudy to Bell and Aitken last year and promises great things in next year's cage aggregation.

Peyton King seems to have managed basketball quite well, being already non compos mentis, it was quite impossible to drive him crazy.

John Boydner, a letterman in track for two seasons, is to be commended for his hard work and brilliant running.

Beverly Barksdale's consistent placing in high jump events has not a little contributed to the high scores rolled up in track events for the past two years.

Varsity tennis man for two years, William Watts ends his high school career with his win column far in front of the lost.

Laurance Jones served as captain and manager of the racqueteers for two years, and bids fair to get somewhere in the tennis world.

Bayard Storm claims his letter for his ability to bat the little white pill around the pasture—in other words, golf.

Acknowledgments

Our work is done—after months of struggle we bring forth a book which we hope will find some little favor in the eyes of the Student Body, who have been so kind as to trust us with the task of editing and managing their annual. But the credit goes to the untiring efforts of our friends and benefactors, namely: Mr. E. L. Baxter Davidson; Miss Julia Alexander; Faye Sells, our own artist, who, assisted by Miss Nash, is responsible for the sketches throughout the book. Mr. I. Epps Ready, our Faculty Adviser; the Student Body; the School Board; and the business men of the city for their patronage. Our printers, The Observer Printing House; our engravers, The Charlotte Engraving Company; our photographers, The Rembrandt Studio.

We thank you all!
